Pierre Dandelot (2007)

Pierre Dandelot, who died in 2007, was a superb painter, sculptor and taxidermist of animals, especially primates. In “A Field Guide to the Larger Mammals of Africa” (1970), his colour paintings and black-and-white drawings, complementing the text by Jean Dorst, established the precedent that beautiful yet accurate artwork can reveal as much or more about an animal as can a photograph—thus starting a tradition which is still today upheld by notable artists such as Stephen Nash. Pierre was enthusiastic about the animals themselves, and even published a few papers on the taxonomy of African monkeys, in which, as an artist, he showed that he was able to detect significant features which had been missed by standard taxonomists: as he put it, “ils n’ont pas l’oeil” (“they do not have the eye”).

Sketches by Pierre Dandelot. Angola colobus, Colobus angolensis. Top left. Labeled “angolensis, adolphi-frederici and palliatius”. The form adolphi-frederici is considered a junior synonym of C. a. ruwenzorii by Groves (2001, Primate Taxonomy, Smithsonian Institution Press, Washington, DC). Groves (2001) lists the form palliatius as a subspecies of Colobus angolensis. Top right. Labeled angolensis. Bottom left and right. Labeled cottoni. Considered a subspecies of C. angolensis by Groves (2001). Original with Colin P. Groves.

(right). Groves (2001, Primate Taxonomy, Smithsonian Institution Press, Washington, DC) places both as subspecies of Colobus guereza; the former, as uelensis Matschie, as a junior synonym of C. g. occidentalis. Original with Colin P. Groves.
